Antony Macwhinnie

Antony is a chartered accountant (having qualified at what is now KPMG) with wide ranging experience over nearly 20 years in all aspects of corporate finance with UBS Warburg, NatWest Markets and latterly as a managing director at Deutsche Bank. He was principally involved in the provision of corporate and M&A advice and also in fund-raising particularly for small to mid-cap clients.

The particular experience Antony brings to Law Debenture, which he joined in 2002, is his knowledge of companies, corporate situations and the financial markets which is especially valuable to clients in the currently challenging environment for pension funds. He is responsible for a range of ongoing schemes of varying size and type (and is chairman of three) with extensive experience particularly of investment committees, covenant reviews and scheme specific valuation exercises. He also has experience of scheme wind-ups and compromise agreements with employers. He is a member of the Securities Institute and a TPAS adviser.
