David Felder

David has over 25 years experience of working with pension funds in both the public and private sectors, first at Morgan Grenfell (now part of Deutsche Bank) as a fixed income fund manager and then at Kleinwort Benson (now owned by Allianz) where he was Head of Fixed Income between 1992 and 1998.

Along with pension funds, clients included government organisations and insurance companies in the UK and internationally with a wide range of investment requirements.

More recently David was Head of Investments in London for Daiwa SB Investments, a joint venture between two of Japan's largest financial organisations, Daiwa Securities and Sumitomo Bank.

He joined Law Debenture in 2002 and represents Law Debenture as a trustee of schemes for a range of clients in the manufacturing and financial sectors. He sits on several investment committees and chairs several trustee boards.

David is a fellow of the Securities Institute.
